

Abstract

A compliant member is described for placement in a fuel cell, in a wet seal area thereof, which is defined by a bipolar plate structure and is adjacent an electrode and current collector. The compliant member comprises a flat body member having sections extending outwardly of 5 the plane of the body member and imparting compliance to the compliant member.